“ I remember playing with him at Bill's and his second wife Betty's house. Seems like we called him Butch. He was a super nice kid anyway. Betty was my cousin. He just wasn't around enough. Seems like it was rare but he was sure a nice kid.

“ I was saddened to hear of Uncle Wayne's passing. But it is comforting to know he will be hanging with grandma again. Uncle Wayne was such a kind man and he made it easy for her to boss him around. Aunt Faye, Chuck, Lori and John you are in my prayers. Love to all, Jill and family

“ What I will always remember about Wayne the most is his laugh. He listened to you when you talked and he enjoyed a good story or a good joke or a good tale about the past and he would let you know it by his hearty laugh or big smile. He loved Faye with all his heart and would have been lost without her. I knew them for forty years and never saw two people who fit together so well. I was always looking for a guy like Wayne for myself, but I think there was only one of him, and he belonged with Faye. He loved his mother and children dearly as well, and would have done anything in the world for them. He was a good man who lived by the set of rules that he thought of as right and wrong. He didn't budge when that would have been easier. You can't say that about too many men nowadays. I'm proud to have had him as a friend for so many years. My love and condolences to Faye, Lori, Chuck and John.
